

Samsung says it leaked data on handful of UK customers

February 25 2020, by The Associated Press

In this April 30, 2019 file photo, an employee walks past a logo of the Samsung Electronics Co. at its office in Seoul, South Korea. Samsung said Tuesday, Feb. 25, 2020, that a "technical error" displayed customers' personal information on its website to other customers. The technology company said the error was only on its samsung.com/UK website and affected fewer than 150 customers. People who logged on to its site were able to see someone else's name, phone number, address, email address and previous orders. Samsung said it did not leak card details. (AP Photo/Ahn Young-joon, File)

Samsung said Tuesday that a "technical error" caused its website to display other customers' personal information.

The technology company said the error affected only its U.K. website at samsung.com/UK and affected fewer than 150 customers.

People who logged on were able to see someone else's name, phone number, address, email address and previous orders. Samsung said it did not leak card details.

The South Korean company is the world's largest cellphone maker and a massive producer of electronics including chips and TVs.

© 2020 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed without permission.

Citation: Samsung says it leaked data on handful of UK customers (2020, February 25) retrieved 9 April 2024 from <https://techxplore.com/news/2020-02-samsung-leaked-uk-customers.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--