

RightForge to host Trump social media platform: CEO

October 26 2021

The CEO of internet infrastructure company RightForge says it will host former president Donald Trump's new social media platform.

The conservative-friendly internet infrastructure company RightForge will host former US president Donald Trump's new social media platform, Truth Social, its CEO Martin Avila said.

Avila told the online news outlet Axios that he expected Trump's new social network to have more than 75 million users, and the web hosting company has been "laying the groundwork for that."

"That's why there will be servers everywhere," Avila said in an interview with Axios published on Tuesday.

Trump was banned from Twitter and Facebook after the January 6 insurrection, but the RightForge CEO said he believed that the former president should not be silenced.

"If you believe that the president should be de-platformed, we believe that you're not really interested in living in a free country," Avila told Axios.

"And that's really what we're all about is making sure that America stays true to its core ideas, and that the marketplace of ideas stays open."

Avila said that RightForge began building a global network after Trump was booted off social media and Amazon pulled the plug on the right-wing social network Parler.

Trump announced plans last week to launch Truth Social in the latest bid to reclaim his internet dominance.

The move further fueled speculation that the real estate titan is gearing up for another presidential run in 2024.

In a statement Tuesday, Trump said the Trump Media and Technology Group, in addition to Truth Social and an on-demand video streaming service, "sees opportunities" in other key areas ranging from web services to payment processing.

The video streaming service will compete with "the increasingly 'woke' and politicized 'entertainment' programming created by Big Tech and Big Media players," Trump said.

"We've seen a sitting president of the United States effectively silenced by a small oligarchy of tech titans and 'mainstream' media corporations," he said.

"I am determined to break their chokehold over the voices of the American People—not just for myself and my own supporters, but for the United States of America!"

Facebook banned Trump indefinitely on January 7, a day after his supporters attacked the Capitol to try to prevent certification of Joe Biden's election victory, and later narrowed the ban to two years.

Twitter permanently suspended Trump's account—which had more than 88 million followers at the time—due to the "risk of further incitement of violence."

© 2021 AFP

Citation: RightForge to host Trump social media platform: CEO (2021, October 26) retrieved 20 April 2024 from <https://techxplore.com/news/2021-10-rightforge-host-trump-social-media.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--