having "a sturdier feel" than its predecessor, the Galaxy Fold, and gave Samsung props for continuing "to bend the rules of how a smartphone looks and functions."

The Galaxy Z Fold2 5G, released in September for $1,999, has a 6.2-inch front screen and unfolds to reveal a 7.6-inch middle screen. It's now priced at $1,449.99 with trade-in on Samsung.com.

U.S. TODAY tech contributor Bob O'Donnell described the device as "the world's first pocketable 2-in-1 device," back in September 2020.
